

Wednesday, March 27, 2013

Duxbury Clipper

Future Perfect

DFL's Sunday Salon Series featured a screening of a short film, "Future Perfect." This was the second screening of the film by DHS graduate Liam Billingham. "Future Perfect" is the name of the New York City ESL school in the movie and the film follows the struggles of a student as he tries to learn English.

Below: As the audience applauded, Billingham bowed.

Billingham is surrounded by his sisters, Leslie Diamandis and Adrienne Bock.

Suzanne Billingham, principal of Chandler School, stands next to her son.

Photos by Julius A. Prince, Jr.

Liam Billingham spoke about the production of the film. The two most expensive areas were the cost of the rental of the professional camera and the cost of the actors.

DFL young adult librarian Ellen Snoeyenbos introduced Billingham and the film.